Causes of Disability

Census data shows that at least 7.8% of Vietnam's population is living with a disability.¹ Stroke, road injury, low back pain and major depressive disorder are among the main contributing factors to years lived with disability in Vietnam.²

In addition to the negative impact disability has on income and employment potential, those living with disability incur additional costs. It is estimated that the additional costs of disability (e.g. healthcare, rehabilitation, transportation) amount to an average of 11.5% of income, further compounding the negative impact of disability.³ Leading risk factors for diseases which can lead to disability in Vietnam include dietary risks, tobacco use, high blood pressure and high fasting blood sugar.⁴

Many causes of disability can be managed through early intervention, education and lifestyle changes. For disorders that progress to disability and eventual absence from work, Generali Vietnam offers disability benefits and associated support services.
